

A. H. STUDENTS WIN MANY PRIZES

OVER SIXTY-FIVE CASH PRIZES
WON IN A VERY SUCCESSFUL
EDUCATIONAL TRIP.

R. H. WOOTEN WON MAN

Over sixty-five animal husbandry students took advantage of the faculty's permission to visit the Dallas Fair and engage in the students' stock judging contests. These contests are held every year for A. & M. students, and in addition to the prizes offered the experience the students get in having such a large number of the best fitted show animals in the State to work with is invaluable. The college has one of the best fitted practice turfs in the country, but the college cannot have the number and variety of animals that the students had at the fair every year.

Then again the environment the students were under in a contest of this character is precious to them. When the standpoint of education, they are thrown in personal contact with the breeders of the State and naturally they assimilate the ideas which the breeder is working. The animal judges of these contests are excellent men. Aside from being the placings, these men listen to the student's reasons and offer criticism and advice. Each man is given a grade on his placing and another on his reasons. The man getting the highest combined grade wins the prize for that particular class.

The days these boys spend at the fair are far from holidays. The work begins at 9 o'clock and ends at 6 that night. All of the boys, however, are unanimous in saying that the time spent is far more profitable than a similar amount of time spent in class work, even though it means increased effort when they get back to school, in order for them to pass their school work. If more trips of this character could be taken from time to time, the A. & M. College could send a winning stock judging team to Chicago every year, for these contests are the training schools for the successful team.

The animal husbandry department is one of the most fortunate departments in the school in this respect. For more opportunities are offered their men to enter contests of this kind than any other. Animal husbandry seniors are in demand at all the county fairs of Texas to do the official judging. Several of the seniors have already judged in county fairs this year, and others have been engaged.

Among the students who went to Dallas this year were a large number of juniors. It is well that they did, for they obtained experience they will never regret. It is well for the junior to realize that he is not losing out in his school work, that he is not getting behind his less fortunate brother, but rather that he is that much ahead of the man who stays at college and does continually. There must be some relationship between good scholarship and these trips, for records show that a smaller per cent of the men who took these trips fail in their work than those who remain the entire year on the campus. The men who went to Dallas this year all intend going back next year, and our school realizes that it is not losing but gain, for our men to take these trips.

FARMERS DOWN TO SECRET PRACTICE

Coch Marlan Has Buckled His Squad Down to Heavy Work for the Texas Game.

The gates closed Thursday at Kyle Field for spectators during the practice of the Farmers in preparation for the State University game to be played there on November 19. Absolutely no one other than the regular football squad men are allowed on the field with the coaches. All students, including "T" men in other lines of sports, are denied the pleasure of watching their team get in shape for the one great game of the year.

"I am sorry, but we will have very little inside dope to put out until the game," says Captain Garrity. "Fortunately our men returned from the Rice beating with few injuries and bruises, and within another day or two they will be in prime shape again. When the football enthusiasts of Texas think we are already beaten, I'm afraid they are mistaken, for we are going to put everything we've got into the game on the 19th, and if we don't 'saw Varsity's horns off,' we will at least give the spectators a game that they will not forget soon. As to our lines of play, etc., the coaches have forbidden our discussing them off of the field."

When it comes to knowing football plays and tactics there isn't a coach in the South that has anything on Marlan of A. and M. So far he has confined himself to fundamentals, but the next ten days will doubtless develop many changes in the Farmers' methods of attack. It is going to take open field work to beat the University, and Marlan has some wonderful material from which to build up such plays. Rollins, the wonderful halfback, who has starred in all the games this year, has only two more games of college career, as he is a senior this year and will graduate next June. His work in passing the ball has created much comment this fall. He has combined both distance and accuracy in his work and must be reckoned with in open field work.

Kendrick and Collins can safely be counted on to deliver the goods with their feet. Men who can consistently punt for 60 and 70 yards are valuable on any squad. Ten days of steady hard work will do much in perfecting this line of play.

Coch Marlan is expected to keep a heavy man at halfback and will probably continue Braumiller at that position, though he might shift Stetson back from tackle. However, such changes may not be made public.

TEXAS GINNERS' REPORT.

648,252 Bales Were Ginned During Month of October.

Austin, Tex., Nov. 12.—The State Department of Agriculture Thursday announced the summary of ginner's reports of cotton ginned in Texas during the month of October, showing there were ginned 648,252 bales, against 483,916 bales for the month of October, 1914. Continued warm weather this fall caused the cotton to mature faster than for the same period last year.

Ellis County led in the number of bales ginned last month, being 24,191 bales, with McLennan County second with 24,017 bales.
